Memorial Day observed in SH with parade, cemetery program

The Memorial Day commemoration began with the traditional parade through downtown South Haven and ending at the Lakeview cemetery with a program organized by American Legion "Edward W. Thompson" Post 49.

The Grand Marshall was Army Veteran Sergeant Major Albert Anthony, a South Haven native who twice was awarded the Purple Heart for his service in Vietnam.

The keynote address was presented by Post 49 Adjutant Dan Thompson.

Participating in the ceremony were the South Haven junior high and high school bands. The Post 49 Honor Guard led the parade and concluded the ceremony with a three-volley salute.

Mayor Brown issues proclamation to two major contributors

By James Windell

A husband-and-wife team known for their leadership and influence in elevating South Haven's profile beyond the region and contributing to its recognition as a place of lasting value, opportunity, and pride, were honored with proclamations by Mayor Annie Brown at the regular meeting of the South Haven City Council on May 18, 2026.

Jay DeBruyn, who dedicated nearly five decades of his life to the growth, development, and vitality of South Haven, was in the City Council Chamber to receive the proclamation. However, his wife, Gwen Ann DeBruyn passed away in 2024 – and her daughters accepted the posthumous award.

The mayor's proclamation indicated that Jay DeBruyn served as President and Broker of Shores Real Estate and founded Shores of South Haven in 1977. This was at a time when South Haven faced economic decline and uncertainty, however, DeBruyn recognized not only what the community was, but what it could become, demonstrating uncommon vision and belief in its future.

Furthermore, the proclamation stated that through determination, innovation, and long-term investment, DeBruyn restored neglected properties, developed more than a dozen condominium communities, and played a defining role in shaping the modern waterfront and residential character of South Haven. His developments – including The Harbours, Bent Tree, Water's Edge, Windsurfer, North Shore, and others – helped establish South Haven as a premier destination along Lake Michigan, drawing visitors and homeowners who continue to return year after year.

The proclamation awarded to Gwen Ann DeBruyn, who was best known as the founder and creative director of Bayberry Cottage, a beloved South Haven design business she opened in 2000, described her as an interior designer, mentor, business leader, and community advocate. "Gwenn left a lasting imprint on the visual identity, hospitality, on the spirit of South Haven and the surrounding community," the proclamation read.

In accepting the proclamation, Jay DeBruyn thanked everyone for coming to the presentation. "It's been a wonderful experience in this town," he said. "I think it was 45 years that I've been here working on it. I think I'm done.

Council makes appointments to board and commissions

By James Windell

One of the responsibilities of South Haven's Mayor Annie Brown is to nominate people to boards and commissions where there is a vacancy. Once nominations have been made it is up to the City Council to confirm or reject the nominations.

Which is why at the May 18, 2026, regular meeting of the City Council, Mayor Brown presented a list of 14 people nominated for various boards and commissions. Those nominations were:

- Jordan Alsup to the Downtown Development Authority for a 4-year term
- Ryan Servatius to the Downtown Development Authority for a 4-year term
- Kevin Conway to the Harbor Commission for a 3-year term
- Mary Kilpatrick-Hall to the Housing Commission for a 5-year term
- Patricia Hudson to the Liberty Hyde Bailey Museum Board for a 3-year term
- Kirk Wiley to the Liberty Hyde Bailey Museum Board for a 3-year term
- Sondra Sutton to the Liberty Hyde Bailey Museum Board for a 3-year term
- Kent Brindley to the Parks Commission for a 3-year term
- David Kingsbury to the Parks Commission for a 3-year term
- Ryan Servatius to the Planning Commission for a 3-year term
- Clark Gruber to the Planning Commission for a 3-year term
- Bob Sherman to the Planning Commission for a 3-year term
- Brian Sheehy to the South Haven Water Sewer Authority for a 4-year term
- Lisa Stegall to the Zoning Board of Appeals for a 3-year term as an alternate

The City Council was asked to consider approval of Resolution 2026-18, a resolution to approve all nominees. Councilman Jeff Arnold made a motion to approve the resolution. The motion was supported.

Before there was a vote on this motion, Councilwoman Letitia Wilkins raised a question: "I have a question," she began. "I noticed that there's one person that is on two committees, and I wanted to know were there not any other applicants to fill those spots?"

"There were other applications for Planning Commission," Mayor Brown responded. "And I'm appointing Ryan Servatius."

"I understand that, but why would he also be on the DDA, too?" Wilkins asked.

"Because he applied for that," Brown said.

Councilwoman Mary Hosley raised her hand to comment. "Yes. Along the same lines as Councilwoman Wilkins, you know, for Planning Commission, by state law, the membership is supposed to be representative of the entire territory," Hosley said. "Over the last two or three years, it's gone from three women and six men to two women and seven men. And now with this appointment, it would go to one woman and eight men – which is not representative of our community, which is more than 50 percent women. And there were other applicants, and I am concerned that this just doesn't convey engagement of our community, especially when there are more applicants than there are positions, and one applicant is then allowed to sit on two boards. It doesn't engage the community, and I get concerned with regard to the state law, having a representative board of the community, and especially when there are other qualified candidates who do come to meetings before applying."

Hosley went on to say that appointing people to multiple boards when there are multiple applicants for those boards is disengaging of the community and does not bring diversity to boards and commissions. "Therefore, I am not able to support the recommendation for the full Planning Commission."

At this point, City Attorney Dave Eberle weighed with a comment. "I don't share Member Hosley's concerns regarding the state law for the appointment of planning commissioners," Eberle said. "If it's okay with the council, I'll go ahead and read that excerpt from the Planning Enabling Act. 'The membership of a planning commission must be representative of important segments of the community, such as the economic, governmental, educational, and social development of the local unit of government in accordance with the major interests of the local unit of government, such as agriculture, natural resources, recreation, education, public health, government, transportation, industry, housing, and commerce. The membership must also be representative of the entire territory of the local unit of government to the extent practicable.'"

Councilman Eddie Polk got in the discussion saying, "I think we need to be clear when we talk about diversity and bringing diversity to a board or commission. We have to look at the needs of the city and what's the role of that [commission], and look at the unique qualities that that an individual brings."

"I have no doubt that you did consider that in your choices. Am I correct?" Polk said to Brown.

"Right," Brown replied.

A roll call vote was called for and with Councilwoman Hosley voting no, the resolution for the slate of nominees was passed by majority vote.

Responding to the passing of the resolution approving all 14 nominations, Ryan Servatius posted on Facebook that it was an honor to be reappointed to another term on the Downtown Development Authority and to be added to the South Haven City Planning Commission.

"I'm looking forward to bringing my past experience from the South Haven Township Planning Commission, my years in the housing industry, and my background as a small business owner to the table," Servatius wrote. "I am excited to collaborate with my fellow members to ensure we work toward a positive future that benefits our entire community."

High gas prices putting squeeze on drivers

By James Windell

When Jack filled up his tank a few days ago in his Chevrolet Traverse SUV, the bill was $85.48.

"Wow!" Jack exclaimed as he looked at the reading on the gas pump. "That's a lot of money!"

Jack can afford it, but he's not happy about the way gas has increased. He's also retired and he and his wife can choose whether he wants to take any trips.

"We were thinking about driving to Boston to see our daughter," he remarked, "but I think we will postpone that until the price of gas comes down.

Melanie, who drives 50 to 100 miles a day as part of her job, isn't happy either.

"Gas costs more than a dollar more than it did last year," she says. "I'm looking at ways I can economize in other areas in order to be able to afford the increase in gas. I get reimbursed for my mileage but that reimbursement doesn't go up when the cost of a gallon of gas increases."

With the average price of regular unleaded gasoline in Michigan bouncing back and forth between $4.70 and $4.99 per gallon, almost everyone is feeling the effects of the increased cost of gas.

Influencing the price you pay at the pump are the conflicts in the Middle East, including disruptions at the Strait of Hormuz. Increased crude oil costs tend to push gasoline prices higher.

There may be other factors driving up the cost of a gallon of gas, but many people may not care about what is driving the cost up. They just worry about the effect on them as consumers or as someone responsible to stay within a budget.

Take Ana Aleman-Putman, the Superintendent of South Haven Schools, for instance. She's responsible for keeping a fleet of buses on the road every day during the school year. But she's more worried about what higher gas prices do to others.

"Higher gas prices worry me as they add extra financial stress to employees and families," Aleman-Putman says. "When gas goes up, it stresses our already tight budgets."

She adds that it's still too early to see the financial impact on the school budget if prices remain high.

She added though that there are on-going efforts to ensure that services to students are not affected.

The City of South Haven has many vehicles which provide services to the community. City Manager Kate Hosier says that the City doesn't track the cost to the City of higher gas prices. But she acknowledged that if prices remain high this could be a topic of conversation among City staff.

Adam DeBoer, Chief of the South Haven Police Department, said gas prices are not currently a concern for him and that "It probably worries the general public more."

"I want my team out in the field proactively rather than sitting in the office waiting for calls," DeBoer says. He added that so far no city department has discussed gas-price-related operational changes. "That would probably only be reconsidered if gas prices reached an extreme level."

He added that the price of gas at whatever amount is "Just the cost of doing business."

When Jennifer Sistrunk, the Executive Director of Visit South Haven, gave an annual report to the City Council recently, she remarked that higher gas prices might be a bonus for the tourism business.

"Most visitors coming to South Haven are in-state Michigan travelers," she said. "Gas prices may drive more people to stay in Michigan for their vacations."

And that means that when it costs roughly $70 to $80 to fill a standard 15-gallon tank, tourist dollars are more likely to be left in cities like South Have That's one silver lining in an otherwise dismal summer projection of continued high gas prices.

South Haven signals lifeguard readiness for beaches

By James Windell

At a training drill on South Haven's South Beach, the new lifeguards looked fit and ready to begin patrolling the beach on Memorial Day.

The media was invited to the training drill involving all eight lifeguards and Chief Lifeguard David Figueredo on Thursday, May 21, 2026. Figueredo led his lifeguard crew through various warmup exercises plus a short swim of about 50 yards out into Lake Michigan.

At a press conference prior to the training exercise, Figueredo, who is both Chief Lifeguard and Beach Safety Manager, said that he was "super excited to launch this on South Beach." He added that the lifeguards have been working very hard and training for two weeks in cold weather.

"We've really put them through the ringer, for lack of a better term, but they've come every day ready to go, with smiling faces and willing to learn," Figueredo said.

Responding to questions from the media, Figueredo said that the eight lifeguards were hired based on their qualifications, work experience, and maturity. "Then they have been going through our two-week intensive lifeguard academy, where we teach them the basics of water rescue, on land first aid, prevention, surveillance, and how to operate in treacherous surf environments, to make those rescues," he explained. "That's coupled with classroom sessions to teach them everything they need to know about being a surf lifeguard." He said that all of the lifeguards would be certified before going out on the beach.

Also answering questions from the media was South Haven Police Chief Adam DeBoer, who has been working closely with Figueredo.

"We're excited for our lifeguards to be out on the beach," DeBoer said. "We want people who come to South Beach to feel safe." He went on to say that "South Haven has always provided a very clean beach for people to enjoy, and I think being involved in the training, we have a good group of guards that are ready to hit the water."

A TV reporter asked DeBoer if he had any concerns that parents will now use the lifeguards as a sort of babysitter. DeBoer responded by saying: "I hope not. I think parents with children realize the responsibilities they have when they go to the beach. Obviously, our lifeguards will always be vigilant to the people in the water, but they might go and say something to a parent if they see a parent not paying attention as well."

DeBoer said that the police department played a big role at South Beach in the past when there were no lifeguards. "Now with lifeguards and a beach enforcement team," he said, "the role for the police will change. If we have an emergency on the beach, [there will be a] handoff from our lifeguards to an ambulance, a fire crew or to the police department when that scene develops beyond their capabilities."

City Manager Kate Hosier led off the press conference by thanking Chief DeBoer and David Figueredo for their coordination in hiring and training lifeguards.

She was asked would makes South Haven different in terms of it needing lifeguards. "I think that South Haven is not unique to many lake shore communities who find themselves to be a very attractive tourist place for people to enjoy," she responded. "Unfortunately, when you have a lot of people who come to these areas, sometimes they do not know the conditions. They do not know what is at the beach. So, we've done a lot with signage to make sure that we're trying to let people know what's on the beach, but every lake shore community faces these kind of challenges."

She was also asked if having guards on the beach will make the City more liable if somebody does get injured in a swimming accident. "I think that any time you add more staff you are adding more liability," she said. "That's just the bottom line."

Hosier was asked about her message for families going into Memorial Day weekend. "I would say the message is please come enjoy our beaches," she replied. "If you prefer to stay at a guarded beach, South Beach is the guarded beach. The other northern beaches, North Beach, Woodman Beach, and Oak Street Beach are not guarded. So, if you prefer to be at a guarded beach, and we'd like you to be here, please stop by South Beach, and we hope that everyone has a very clean, very safe experience."

Figueredo said that his lifeguards are ready for both residents and visitors to South Beach. "There will always be a lifeguard on surveillance if someone's on the sand," he said. "So, people don't necessarily even have to be in the water for someone to be on watch, but we will be guarding from 11:00 am to 7:00 pm, seven days a week."

Museum kicks off summer season with Blessing of the Fleet

The summer season at the Michigan Maritime Museum in South Haven was launched Friday with the organization's annual fish fry, featuring the famous fried lake perch from Captain Lou's. The event began with the Blessing of the Fleet ceremony and the casting of flowers on the water, both century-old maritime traditions. The museum also debuted its new Harris Commercial Fishing Building, which highlights the history of the commercial fishing industry in South Haven and throughout Lake Michigan.

LAWRENCE – Many Lawrence area veterans gathered Thursday, May 21, at the Lawrence Elementary gym to hear tributes in word and song by Lawrence Public Schools' students.

Following a welcome by Lawrence Jr-Sr. High Principal, Brock Thumm, the Lawrence High School Band played the National Anthem.

"In Flanders Field," by John McCrae, was then read by William San Juan-Gonzalez.

Members of the Lawrence National Elementary Honor Society then carried branch service flags in front of the veterans as a branch of service medley was played. Veterans were asked to stand when their branch song was played.

Student Grace Stone presented a "Thank you to Veterans."

Lawrene Public Schools' Superintendent Ryan Williamson then gave a short address to the veterans and students gathered.

"Memorial Day is a special holiday in the United States when we remember and honor the soldiers who died while serving in the military," said Williamson.

"It's a day to be thankful for the bravery and sacrifice of those who helped protect our country," he said.

Williamson continued, "Memorial Day is also a time when families get together, maybe have a picnic or attend a parade – but it's important to remember why we have this holiday."

He added, "It's not just a day off. It's a day to think about courage, sacrifice, gratitude, and appreciation."

He concluded, "So this Memorial Day, I hope you'll take a moment to pause and remember the heroes who helped make our country what it is today."

As the celebration ended, Wendy Murney, a retired Lawrence Elementary teacher gave a history of the song, "Taps," followed by the playing of "Taps" by Juan Roldan.

A Connecticut Youth Comes of Age During Revolution

James Stevens' tombstone

Editor's Note:
The following story was written by Tom Funke about a Van Buren County Revolutionary War veteran buried in Colburn Cemetery, near Lawrence, in Arlington Township.

A Connecticut Youth Comes of Age During Revolution

James Stevens was born on 10 August 1757 in Glastonbury, Hartford County, Connecticut Colony, the son of Joseph and Jerusha (Stowe) Stevens. Raised in a colonial farming community, he came of age just as tensions with Britain reached a boiling point. Like many young men of his era, Stevens answered the call to arms as the Revolution broke out.

In February 1777, at age 19, Stevens enlisted for the duration of the conflict in the Continental Army. His service record - preserved through later pension applications - shows that he served in Captain Mill's Company of Colonel Baldwin's Artillery Artificers before transferring to a regiment commanded by Colonel Brewer. This service placed him in the heart of the Continental Army's operations throughout the latter half of the Revolutionary War.

Stevens's military career was active and geographically broad. Documents indicate he participated in key battles of the Northern theater, including the Battle of Monmouth, the Battle of Brandywine, the Battle of Germantown, the Battle of Trenton, and operations around White Plains. These engagements - some of the most brutal of the war - were fought under the overall command of General George Washington, and they helped shape the course of the struggle for independence.

The Continental Army during this period was a hard pressed force, often facing shortages of food, clothing, and supplies. Yet it was also a crucible for forging national identity, as soldiers like Stevens from different colonies fought side by side. The training, hardships, and camaraderie of this era helped bind the new nation together. General Washington's leadership was central to this effort — not always triumphant, but always steadfast in forging a unified army from disparate militia and continental forces.

Postwar Life and Family

After the war, Stevens returned to civilian life and married Honor Talcott on 8 December 1784 in Connecticut. Together they began a family that would eventually include eight children: James, Sally, John, Lucy, Horace, Clarissa, Jerusha, and Samuel. As with many Revolutionary War veterans, Stevens's transition from soldier to pioneer and family man was marked by movement and adaptation.

In 1807, Stevens moved his family from Connecticut to Lewis County, New York, undertaking the grueling journey by ox sled and horse. Settling near the village of Lowville, he and his family farmed and established roots in the frontier lands of upstate New York.

Yet another chapter awaited him in the 19th century as Americans pushed ever westward.

Pension and Michigan Settlement

By the 1820s, Stevens - like many aging veterans - sought formal recognition for his service. In 1819, he applied for a Revolutionary War pension, detailing his enlistment and years of service in the Continental Army. For his service, he was eventually granted a pension and 100 acres of bounty land, rewards offered by the young United States to compensate long serving soldiers.

Census records from 1840 list James Stevens, at age 83, living in Lawrence Township, Van Buren County, Michigan, as a pensioner for military service, evidence of his later life in the developing West.

A Town's Name and the Legacy of Service

Stevens's influence in his community extended beyond his military record. When settlers organized what would become Arlington Township, Van Buren County, Michigan, in 1842, it was Stevens — one of the oldest and most respected pioneers - who suggested the name. Vital records clearly indicate he was born in Glastonbury, Connecticut. He may have resided in Vermont or had significant ties there before moving to New York.

Arriving in Arlington Township at age 83, Stevens embodied the pioneer ethos: disciplined, industrious, and unafraid of hard work even in his later years. Neighbors recounted that he was a central figure during community gatherings, rich with stories of war and settlement, and that his presence lent historical gravitas to the formation of the new township.

Final Years and Commemoration

James Stevens died on 8 July 1846 at the age of 88. Markers placed by the Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) list his death as July 8, 1847. He was buried in Colburn Cemetery, near Lawrence in Van Buren County, Michigan, where his gravestone still marks him as a "Soldier of the Revolution."

His second wife, Esther Stevens, survived him and continued to draw a widow's pension until she died in the 1850s. There was confusion to which James Stevens she was married to, as, the file associated with her application - File W8766 - belongs to a different James Stevens who served from Virginia and died in Kentucky. The pension files for our James Stevens - which have been digitized as case W6187 - include affidavits and details about Stevens's service that illuminate the life of an ordinary man swept up in extraordinary times. These records are invaluable primary sources that confirm his long service and post war recognition.

Historical Significance

James Stevens's story - while not one of well known generals or founders - is emblematic of the many thousands who fought for American independence and then built the new nation from its eastern settlements to the expanding frontier. His life intersects with several key themes in early American history:

•The transition from colonial subject to citizen soldier: Stevens's enlistment at a young age reflects how the Revolutionary War transformed ordinary colonists into actors in the creation of a new republic.

•Veteran migration and frontier settlement: Like many Revolutionary War veterans, Stevens moved westward after the war, participating in the settlement of lands that would become new states and communities.

•Community leadership and civic identity: His role in naming Arlington Township reflects how Revolutionary War veterans became pillars of emerging communities, lending their authority and experience to civic life.

•Memory and commemoration: The preservation of Stevens's gravestone and his inclusion in pension lists highlight how early Americans sought to remember their war dead and honor their service.

Conclusion

James Stevens's biography weaves together military service, family life, pioneer resilience, and community leadership. From Glastonbury to Van Buren County, his life was a microcosm of early America's transformation - a testament to the enduring impact of Revolutionary War veterans on the nation's growth and identity.

Funke has since found about 100 Revolutionary War veterans buried in Michigan.

William Dyckman, Revolutionary War Veteran, remembered on Memorial Day

"The grave of still another Revolutionary soldier has been discovered in Van Buren county, according to the Paw Paw Courier. His body lies in the old cemetery on north LaGrave street in Paw Paw, and the inscription on the monument that marks his resting place reads: "William Dyckman, a Soldier of the Revolution, Born December 9, 1761, Died September 6, 1846." Mr. Dyckman has not been forgotten by some of the older residents of Paw Paw who knew him during his life time, nor by the members of the G. A. R. Post, who have annually decorated his grave on Memorial day. The cemetery where he is buried is not well cared for, no burials have been made there for years, and the grave of Wm. Dyckman is nearly concealed by a growth of shrubs." -Hartford Day Spring, July 7, 1915

The following information was found in a search on the internet for William Dyckman, Jr.

When William Dyckman, Sr., and Mary Michael Tourneur following their family up to Cortlandtown, NY, in 1776, William Dyckman, Jr., was nearly 14, - too young to join the militia or to serve with his older brothers in the Westchester Guides. A year later, close to his 15th birthday, he was living in Orange County on the other side of the Hudson, where his uncle, Henry Tourneur, was a captain in the Orange County militia.

From his pension application, made 40 years later when the government decided to pay a pension to those who had served during the Revolution, Dyckman was patrolling the river in October of that year, He had enlisted in his uncle's militia company, stationed north of Haverstraw at Stony Point. It was about this time that British troops landed and headed north to attack Forts Clinton and Montgomery.

In the spring of 1778, Dyckman volunteered again and served one week out of every four until winter came. The three months' service he claimed were disallowed by a clerk in the pension office with the dismissive comment "too young" written in the margin of his application. At age 16, on December 9, 1778, he became eligible for military service and was a militiaman again in his uncle's militia company, patrolling one week in every four.

The following year marked the beginning of the Mohawk Valley campaign, and he enlisted at what is now Clarkstown for three months in Captain Jonathan Lawrence's militia company. He marched with his company to Albany and then west along the Mohawk River. His three months were up before he saw any action, but he volunteered to remain "at the solicitation of his officers." In a brief engagement at Fort Plain, near Canajoharie, some enemy troops were captured, and he was chosen to guard them on the march down the Hudson Valley.

William Dyckman, Paw Paw Revolutionary War veteran

Dyckman original tombstone

Discharged at Poughkeepsie after four months' service, he returned to Orange County and rejoined his uncle's militia company, serving for two months in 1781 and one month in 1782.

Although he had itemized 13 months of service on his application, the pension office credited him with only 9-1/2 months. He received an annual pension of $31.66.

William Dyckman, Jr., returned to New York City with his father and married Maria Smith in 1786 at the city's Dutch Reformed Church. Their first daughter was baptized at the Tarrytown Old Dutch Church. Their next two children were baptized in the city at the Dutch Reformed Church. The next child was baptized in the Greenbush Dutch Reformed Church, near Albany.

Most Dyckmans tended to remain in the Hudson Valley, but William Dyckman, Jr., suffered from a strong wanderlust. In 1802, the family relocated from Greenbush to New York's Onondaga County and lived at several locations there until 1834. The next move was to the state of Michigan.

This Dyckman family traveled overland in three covered wagons to Buffalo, where horses, wagons and Dyckmans were loaded on a ship. They disembarked at Detroit and resumed the overland journey to the town of Paw Paw. William Dyckman, Jr., died in Michigan in 1846, a year after his wife's death. They are both buried in Old Town Cemetery in Paw Paw. One of his sons, Evert Brown Dyckman, became prosperous in Paw Paw and built a hotel, the Dyckman House, still operating there on East Michigan Avenue.

125 5th Graders enjoy Trail Education Days

By James Windell

When 125 fifth graders hit the Kal-Haven Trail on May 22, 2026, they learned about the trail's history and a whole lot more.

Visiting nine stations along the trail, students also learned about pollinators, poison ivy, insects, compass navigation, water safety, the Black River Watershed, planting, wildlife, and outdoor recreation.

That, says Visit South Haven's Trenton Bulat, Digital Media Manager, is what Trail Education Day is all about. "It's about connecting students with the backyard we all share, fostering appreciation for nature, and inspiring the next generation of stewards to care for the trails and outdoor spaces that make our community, and our great state Pure Michigan," Bulat says.

An annual event put on by Visit South Haven, Trail Education Day is one of the ways the Visitors Bureau gives back to the community while helping local students connect with the trails, waterways, plants, wildlife, and outdoor spaces that make South Haven so special. It's also one of the programs that helped South Haven become one of the first designated Trail Towns in Michigan through Pure Michigan.

According to Kendra Kingsbury, Guest Relations & Community Liaison for Visit South Haven, five groups of 25 students were picked up from school, dropped at the trail access point, walked 1.6 miles back to the trailhead, rotated through stations, learning something new at each one.

The nine educational stations along the trail and at the Trailhead included a bald eagle, an owl, pansies, skateboards, pollinators, water safety, a trolley ride, trail history, Black River Watershed history, compasses navigation, and plant and bug identification. "It also included lots of laughter and a whole community showing up for kids," adds Kingsbury.

Bulat said that Visit South Haven thanks every partner, presenter, volunteer, and supporter who helped make the day possible. That list includes Friends of the Kal-Haven Trail, South Haven Garden Club, Barden's Farm Markets for donating pansies, South Haven City Councilmember (and local beekeeper) Dave Flack, Truth Skate Church, Michigan Avian Experience, Mayor Annie Brown, the South Haven Area Chamber of Commerce, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, Chief Lifeguard David Figueredo, photographer Tom Renner, Destination Paw Paw, Kal-Haven Outpost, and Kitchen 527 for keeping everyone fueled up with a great lunch.

"The kids were engaged and the volunteers were amazing," notes Kingsbury. "The weather was perfect. It was a great day on the trail. I'm still nerding out that we got to see a Bald Eagle that close to us! That was a highlight for me."

Tickets on sale for 29th annual Cottage Walk

Tickets are on sale for the 29th annual Cottage Walk to be held Saturday, June 27.

Co-sponsored by SHOUT for South Haven and the Scott Club, the event will feature tours of four unique cottages, concluding with a tour of the historic Scott Club.

"This year's featured lineup is an eclectic array of residences unique to our community," said spokesperson Patti Sheppard. "Participants who are longtime residents of South Haven especially will have an opportunity to take a step back in time with a visit to a converted neighborhood school. There will also be an opportunity to experience the accents of a 19th century-style Italianate villa, visit a uniquely constructed modular home and enjoy the features of a newly built home. Topping it off with a visit to the Michigan Historic Site Scott Club will make for a memorable afternoon."

The Scott Club building is a stately Queen Anne style structure of sandstone capped by a cupola of carved oak. Two historic windows of Austrian stained glass are featured on the second floor. The recent installation of an elevator in the building has enhanced to tour the building barrier-free.

Event attendees visit the cottages at their leisure from 12-5 p.m. Volunteers at each cottage will provide an historical perspective of the site. Tours of the Scott Club will run from 3:30-5 p.m.

Tickets are $20 person. The advanced purchase of tickets is encouraged as a capacity sale is anticipated.

Tickets are on sale during normal business thru June 26th at the South Haven Chamber of Commerce, 606 Phillips St., and the South Haven Visitors Bureau, 546 Phoenix St. They will also be sold on the morning of the Cottage Walk at the Farmers Market in downtown Dyckman Park.

SHOUT for South Haven in 2025 invited the Scott Club to partner in the Cottage Walk as a means of bringing to the community's attention two active civic-minded organizations.

"Our continued partnership with the Scott Club is most fitting as both organizations strive to make a great community even greater," said SHOUT President Robert Copping."

"Partnering with SHOUT has strengthened our fundraising and is making a positive impact in these times of rising costs," said Scott Club President Carol Anderson Kunze. "Proceeds from this year's Cottage Walk will be used in support of our mission to provide arts and cultural programming in our Michigan Historic Site."

The planning committee for this year's Cottage Walk is Robert Copping, Carol Anderson Kunze, Anna Krajecki, Patti Sheppard, Renee Kaplan and Tom Renner.

MIKE'S MUSINGS

MIKE WILCOX ■ PUBLISHER ■

I often seek out thought provoking words of wisdom on the internet. Just last week I came across this (by anonymous) and thought I would share it with you. It might not mean much to those that are in their 20's or still have children at home, but for those of us that are considered in our twilight years it hits home. Here it is:

So… this is the beginning of the final stretch.

And slowly, the truths I had avoided all my life began to surface.

Kids? They're busy writing their own story.

Health? Slips away faster than sand through open fingers.

The government? Just headlines, promises and numbers that rarely change your daily reality.

Aging doesn't hurt your body first- it hurts your illusions.

So, I rebuilt my life with new rules- here they are:

Money is more reliable than anything else. Love your kids, but don't make them your retirement plan. Save for yourself. Financial independence is dignity. It allows you to afford a comfortable life if and when you no longer work. A life free of financial worry.

Your health is paramount. Nothing else matters if your body refuses to cooperate. Move, walk, stretch. Don't take health for granted. Guard your sleep like treasure. Eat cleaner. Reduce the poison disguised as sugar or salt.

Create your own joy. Waiting for others to make you happy is the fastest way to heartbreak. So, you learn to enjoy the small things- a peaceful breakfast, a good book, and music that warms the soul. When you know how to make yourself happy, loneliness loses its power.

Aging is not an excuse to become helpless. Some people turn aging into a performance of complaints. And slowly friends begin to slip away. No one wants to hear it. Strength is attractive. Resilience is magnetic. People respect the ones who stay capable, not the ones who surrender.

Let go of the past. The good old days were beautiful- yes. But they're gone and there is no return ticket. Clinging to the past, steals the present. Life today may look different, but it holds moments worth living. And think of the future as bright. You still have a lot of memories to make.

Protect your peace like it's your property. Not every argument needs your voice. Not every insult needs your response. Most of the time keeping quiet is the best choice. Peace is expensive. Protect it from dramas, negativity and draining people.

Keep learning something- anything. The day you stop learning is the day you start aging. A new recipe, a new word, a new app or a new hobby- your brain needs movement just like your body. Learning keeps you young; stagnation makes you old.

Strength and freedom still belong to you. Aging is an exam no can take from you. You can adapt, rebuild and rise stronger…or sit back, and wait for someone to rescue you. The choice is yours. I know what I choose. Do You?

Sheriff's Report- Wanted felon arrested now faces multiple new felony charges

"Our Narcotic detectives received information on the location of a wanted felon in possession of a handgun. Detectives were able to locate him in a vehicle he was a passenger in and conducted a traffic stop on it for a traffic violation in Waverly Township," said Van Buren County Sheriff Daniel Abbott. The suspect was arrested on his warrants and was found to be in possession of a loaded 9mm handgun. Another passenger had multiple warrants, and they were arrested as well. "The initial felon they were looking for now faces multiple new felony charges," said Sheriff Abbott.

Van Buren County Central Dispatch took 7,384 phone calls in April, putting the total at 30,525 for the year. Van Buren County Sheriff's Office Uniform Response handled 736 calls for service in April, putting the total for the year at 2,875. Uniform Response made 415 traffic stops in April, putting the total number of stops for the year at 1,423.

Dispatch Director Mike Hostetler is attending the Michigan Public Safety Telecommunications Conference this week in Muskegon. "They go over a lot of information to aide dispatchers and directors do their job at a professional level," said Sheriff Abbott.

"Our office is participating in "Click it or Ticket Campaign" running through June 2. Deputies will be focusing on no seat belt use but will also be stopping vehicles for other violations as well," said Sheriff Abbott.

"Our office assisted with the USAT National Event in Geneva Township. It was a four-day event which was a national qualifier. It was a huge turnout having 908 individual athletes from four countries: USA, Canada, Mexico, and Macedonia. 47 states and the District of Columbia all had participants. The only states not represented were Alaska, Wyoming, and North Dakota. Our office's mounted division, uniform response division, reserve division, and emergency management division were all involved. The event organizers are covering all our costs we had to work the event; thus, zero county tax dollars were used," said Sheriff Abbott.

Uniform Response handled a single vehicle motorcycle crash in Columbia Township. A passerby drove up on a motorcycle that had left the roadway and crashed. "The passerby found the female driver face down with life threatening injuries and called 911 immediately. Aero Med was unable to fly so the driver was transported priority one to the trauma unit by the ambulance. Speed appears to be the cause entering into a curve too fast," said Sheriff Abbott.

"I received a text Saturday night in reference to a subject with a major bond violation. Uniform Response was given the information, confirmed that he was indeed of the major violation, located the suspect, and placed him into custody. He now faces additional charges for the violation," said Sheriff Abbott.

Uniform Response assisted with a house fire in Bloomingdale Township. Shortly after the call came in, a report of a naked male came in running around on the road and in nearby fields. "Deputies located the individual and chased him on foot as well as with a canine. The individual was taken into custody on outstanding warrants,:" said Sheriff Abbott. A Fire Marshall is investigating the cause of the fire. The male was one of the residents of the house that was on fire. Once the investigation is complete, it'll be sent to the Van Buren County Prosecutor's Office for review on charges.

Uniform Response handled a BOL for a possible drunk driver in Waverly Township. Deputies located the vehicle stopped in the travel lane on M-43 highway that had almost hit the caller head on. "Deputies made contact with the driver, and it was obvious due to his actions and smell of intoxicants he had been drinking. Dexterities were performed, a PBT was administered, then he was placed under arrest. While being handcuffed, he became resistant and started fighting with Deputies. Before it was done, the sergeant was headbutted, and a deputy sustained abrasions and cuts to his elbows, knee, and hand. The deputie's pants were also torn during the resistance. The driver now faces numerous additional charges," said Sheriff Abbott.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Housing package will not make housing more affordable

Dear Editor,

Michigan residents should pay very close attention to the so-called "Housing Readiness" package moving through Lansing: HB 5529–5532 and HB 5581–5585. These bills are being sold as a solution to housing affordability, but nowhere is there a guarantee they will effectively make housing more affordable.

Instead, this proposal is crystal clear in its intent: to pack tiny houses on tiny lots between existing single-family homes connected to public utilities—all while stripping away local control and weakening the rights of residents to challenge zoning changes in their own neighborhoods.

Under these bills, municipalities would be forced to allow 500-square-foot homes on 1,500-square-foot lots, only 5 feet away from neighboring property lines, with a setback of only 15 feet. Duplexes will be allowed in single-family neighborhoods, mobile homes in residential zones, and accessory dwelling units on private property. Protest petition rights would become far more difficult to exercise, and local governments would face automatic approval deadlines that limit meaningful public review.

Supporters claim more supply automatically equals affordability. But Michigan families already know that is not how today's housing market works. Even tiny homes can become overpriced in bidding wars fueled by investors and speculation. "More units" does not translate into affordable homeownership for young families or first-time homebuyers.

At the same time, these bills could place enormous strain on roads, sewer systems, schools, emergency services, and local infrastructure – especially in smaller communities that were not designed for this level of density.

What should concern Michiganders even more is who is backing these bills. Citizens should be cautious about blindly trusting endorsements on these bills simply because they come from like-minded organizations or politicians. Principles that fundamentally protect property rights and values, preserve local governance, and ensure citizens maintain a meaningful voice in decisions that affect their own communities must be honored above builder profit margins.

One of the most frustrating arguments being used to defend these housing bills is the claim that "government shouldn't tell people what they can do with their property." Some organizations and elected officials that have long branded themselves as defenders of local control, constitutional government, and working-class values are now supporting legislation that centralizes zoning power, weakens citizen oversight, and overrides local decision-making. Voters, take notice!

While some of these arguments sound principled on the surface, if government truly has no role in regulating property use, then why do zoning laws exist at all? Why have setback requirements, environmental protections, septic regulations, noise ordinances, burn bans, occupancy limits, or industrial restrictions in residential neighborhoods? Most people understand there must be reasonable standards because one property owner's decisions can directly impact surrounding property owners and the broader community.

Americans have traditionally held the belief that the people closest to a community are best equipped to govern it. Local zoning is, in many ways, one of the purest forms of self-government. Yet these bills move authority away from local residents and toward state mandates and development interests. Residents elect local officials, attend planning meetings, and participate in decisions about how their communities develop. Replacing that process with broad statewide mandates does not expand liberty for homeowners; it weakens the ability of communities to govern themselves.

One of the core American principles at stake is the idea of taxation without representation – the understanding that the governing authority to which you are required to pay taxes should represent you meaningfully. When local zoning authority is overridden by broad state mandates, property owners will still be paying the taxes that fund roads, schools, police, fire services, and infrastructure, but they lose practical control over the development decisions that directly affect the cost and strain of those systems. If housing density is increased without local oversight and consent, the financial burden of expanded infrastructure still falls on existing taxpayers, even when they had little or no ability to influence or object to those changes. In that sense, the concern is not just about housing policy, but about preserving the basic expectation that taxation and local decision-making should remain connected to genuine representation.

Property rights are not just about what a developer wants to build on one parcel. They also include the rights of neighboring homeowners who invested in a community with certain expectations about density, traffic, infrastructure, and neighborhood character. True property rights require balance and local accountability – not top-down mandates that primarily benefit large development interests while limiting the ability of residents to object.

Housing affordability is a real issue, but surrendering local control and fundamentally changing neighborhoods without any assurance of lower housing costs is not a solution homeowners throughout the state should be willing to accept. They should take action and tell their legislators to vote NO on HB 5529–5532 and HB 5581–5585.

Sistrunk reports on Visit South Haven- number of visitors declines

By James Windell

Jennifer Sistrunk addressed the South Haven City Council to give her annual report and review some of the annual travel and tourism numbers.

Speaking to the City Council on Monday, May 18, 2026, Sistrunk, Executive Director of Visit South Haven, said that Visit South Haven, formerly the South Haven Area Convention and Visitors Bureau, was founded in 1987. Now, as Visit South Haven, it is the destination marketing organization for Van Buren County and Casco Township. It also operates Destination Paw Paw.

Sistrunk noted Visit South Haven has a "small but mighty" team of four people, which includes herself as Executive Director, Kendra Kingsbury, who handles community liaison and guest relations, Trenton Bulat, who is digital media manager, and Janice Chittle, who is destination experience manager and leads Paw Paw marketing.

Funding for Visit South Haven comes from a 5% lodging assessment paid by participating lodging members. "Visit South Haven is 100% visitor-funded and uses no local tax dollars," Sistrunk told the City Council. She added that while visitors pay a 6% sales tax, the 5% Visit South Haven assessment is collected from overnight stays.

"Short-term rentals do pay the assessment if the owner/manager has more than 10 transient facilities," she said, "and nine vacation rental management companies are members."

Discussing Visit South Haven's work, Sistrunk said that the work spans traditional, digital and paid marketing services, visitor services, and media/PR services. Visit South Haven recently hosted the National Travel and Tourism Press Conference at the Michigan Maritime Museum. Their work, she went on to say, is framed in three pillars: marketing, destination development, and data/research. "Since 2019, more dollars have been shifted into destination development (e.g., Dyckman Park restroom upgrades, accessibility beach wheelchairs, trails/parks, and grant matching)," she said.

The organization is planning to develop the empty lot on the corner of Phoenix and Broadway soon, but they are examining how they can avoid competing with private business and instead fill unmet community needs.

Sistrunk said they are continually trying to gather visitor insights and put together key data trends. They use Placer.ai to understand visitor demographics and behaviors for decision-making. Sharing a snapshot of the profile of South Haven visitors. She said the median age is about 5; the average household size is about 2.5 people; visitors have a bachelor's degree or higher; and most visitors are female. She also said that a majority of visitors to the City are in-state Michigan travelers.

She added that factors driving visitors to the area include gas prices and a preference to avoid flying. In recent years, the trend has been slightly fewer Chicago visitors and more visitors from Michigan's east side, including metro Detroit metro.

Reporting on annual visitation frequency, she said that about 1.6 million visitors came to the City in 2025. However, there has been a multi-year decline and repeat travel visits have dropped significantly over the past two years. She reported that there has been about a 30% drop in tourists – suggesting fewer repeat trips. "If South Haven's decline continues, a model scenario shows it could fall below one million visitors in 10 years," she said.

Sistrunk concluded her presentation by stating that her team is still working to identify causes of declining repeat travel by comparing other lake shore markets and broader industry patterns. It is evident, she indicated, that people are traveling less often, but spending more intentionally on fewer trips.

OBITUARIES

Robert L. Etzwiler

Robert L. Etzwiler, 85, of Gobles, passed away on Monday, May 18, 2026. He was born March 25, 1941, in Mansfield, Ohio.

He is survived by his wife of 30 years, Pearl Etzwiler, whose resolute marriage served as an inspiration for their family. He is also survived by his children, their spouses, his grandchildren, and 13 great-grandchildren: Kevin Etzwiler (wife Connie & daughter Brianna), John Etzwiler, David Mead, Daniel Mead, Denise Noble (husband Alex & their children Katy, Nicholas, Alexander, Iris), and William Noble (wife Debra & their children Logan, Liam, Spencer, Samuel).

Robert was a proud Vietnam Veteran, executing two combat tours during the war, including the 1968 Tet Offensive. He was drafted into the United States Army in 1966 and re-enlisted twice. Robert served his country as a Light Weapons Infantryman and an Asphalt-Heaterman. He was especially proud to be assigned to the 'Big Red One' and 'American's

First Team', the Army's 1st Infantry and 1st Cavalry Division respectively. He finished his service at the rank of Sergeant, a true frontline leader. For his service and sustained heroism, Robert received many military honors, including the U.S. Army Air Medal, Purple Heart, Combat Infantryman Badge, and the Vietnam Service Medal with Bronze Service Star.

Following his service with the Army, Robert was a long-time member of the Kal-Haven Lions Club and the 1st Cavalry Division Association. He enjoyed gardening, thrift shopping, Western & Military films, and spending time with his family.

Services to honor Robert's life will be held on Friday, May 29, 2026. The public viewing will take place at the D.L. Miller Funeral Home in Bloomingdale, starting at 10:00 a.m. The funeral service will begin at 11:00 a.m. A luncheon will follow at the Gobles Methodist Church. In lieu of flowers, please send donations to the Kal-Haven Lions Club or Vietnam Veterans of America.

Robert L. Etzwiler's legacy is one of sacrifice, both for the Army and his family. Resilience during the Vietnam War, his charity work on the homefront, and his devotion to family will keep him in our hearts forever. There is a common expression in the 1st Cavalry Division, one uttered as conflicts and the years roll on: "Once CAV, Always CAV". Arrangements entrusted to D.L. Miller Funeral Home, Bloomingdale Chapel.

John (Jack) Klimach

John (Jack) Klimach passed away peacefully at his home on May 15, 2026. Jack was born March 12, 1946, to Herman and Ethel Klimach in Paw Paw, Michigan, where he resided his entire 80 years of life. Jack spent the last 46 years beside his soulmate Debra Klimach, who preceded him in death this past January.

Jack was a fan of oldies music and loved to play the drums and/or keyboard himself. He also enjoyed sharing his love for the drums by teaching his children and grandchildren how to play as well. Jack enjoyed tinkering in his garage, working in his yard and having a good Sunday chicken dinner. What Jack enjoyed most were his children and grandchildren, more so his grandchildren! Over the years he enjoyed with his grandchildren the many sleepovers, wrestling matches, New Year's Eve parties and early morning breakfasts spent with them and Debra having fun, laughing and just goofing off.

Jack is survived by three sisters, Clara Wright, Marie Durbin and Shirley Downs; his children, Kevin Klimach, Shawna Gates, Tristan Wilke; eighth grandchildren, and two great- grandchildren.

Per Jacks wishes, cremation has taken place and a private family memorial at a later to be determined date will be held at Austin Cemetery, where he will be put to rest beside his beloved wife.

Campbell wins four events at the USA National Multisport Championships

By James Windell

South Haven athlete Jay Campbell didn't have to travel far for the 2026 USA Triathlon Multisport National Championships Festival. Just three miles east on Phoenix Street for the five-day celebration of multisport, hosted at Lake Arvesta Farms and organized by Tris4Health.

Campbell, who is ranked number one in the U.S. for his age group, expected that since winning a national triathlon event in Milwaukee in 2023, that he might win three of the five events he entered.

But what was unexpected was that he would end up in first place in four of the grueling events.

"This is my fourth year in a five-year age group," Campbell said after winning the Draft-Legal Super Sprint Triathlon on Sunday, May 17, 2026, "so there is always the threat of a 'youngster' entering the group." Campbell is currently in the 70 -74 age bracket group.

Then again, registering in seven events wasn't the best way of ensuring he would win. "Because I was entering so many events," Campbell noted, "there is always the fatigue factor and racing against fresh competition."

Besides finishing first in the Draft-Legal Super Sprint Triathlon (a very short triathlon with 250 meters of swimming, 6 km of biking, and 1 to 2 km of running), he also won the Super Sprint Slide Triathlon, the Super Sprint Time Trial and the Draft-Legal Super Sprint Time Trial (in which athletes ride in packs and draft on the bike, making strategy, positioning, and speed far more important than in standard non draft races).

Campbell has made a significant mark in the triathlon community, winning the 2025 Barron Lake Triathlon in Niles, Michigan, and previously earning the title of three-time national champion. This distinction places him among the elite age-group triathletes in the U.S.

Coached by Dawn Hinz, a South Haven triathlon athlete herself, Campbell won three national championships in Dallas, Texas, in 2023. He has retained his Number One ranking as a duathlete and triathlete.

How does Jay Campbell explain his endurance in a tough sport?

"There is no single factor that has led to my longevity in the sport," Campbell says. "It is many little things: time in the pool; time on the cycling trainer in the basement; running in the snow; proper nutrition; good sleep; strength training; and race strategies." In addition, he thinks his coach and his supportive wife, Mary Hosley, also are keys to his success.

Dawn Hinz, who has been his coach for a few years, explains his success, especially this past weekend, differently. "Jay raced well because he's an experienced athlete who is well trained and listens to his body in training and on race day."

Despite winning national championships, Campell doesn't think he is all that unusual or fast.

"I don't want anyone to think I am under the delusion that I am fast," he says. "I may even be painful to watch. But I am proof – and so are many other older athletes – that triathlon is a sport that you can enjoy in your later years."

Hinz named to state leadership position

By James Windell

Brandon Hinz, Executive Director of South Haven Area Emergency Services (SHAES), was recently sworn in as the Region 5 Representative for the Michigan Association of Fire Chiefs (MAFC).

The honor for Hinz came during the MAFC Leadership Symposium held May 13 and 14, 2026 in Bay City.

"I'm honored by the opportunity to serve in this role," Hinz said after returning from the Leadership Symposium. "For me, it's really about being part of the conversation and helping represent the unique challenges departments like ours face."

Hinz noted that there are very few fire-based EMS transport agencies like SHAES on the west side of Michigan serving large rural areas and multiple communities. "It's important those perspectives have a voice at the state level," he said. "I'm looking forward to learning from others, sharing our experiences, and bringing back ideas that strengthen the service we provide locally."

The symposium brought together fire service leaders from across Michigan to collaborate on leadership development, emerging operational challenges, training strategies, department readiness, and the future of emergency response.

Serving as a Regional Representative provides an opportunity to strengthen collaboration among departments, advocate for regional needs, and help ensure that communities like South Haven continue to benefit from strong partnerships across the fire and EMS service.

Hinz joined the SHAES staff in 1999. A lifelong resident of the South Haven community, he started as a paid-on-call responder and since 2005 has been a fulltime firefighter/paramedic. In 2012 he was presented with the department's Leadership Award. He was named executive director/chief in 2020. Hinz lives in Geneva Township with his wife Dawn and sons Jake and Cal.

SHAES serves the city of South Haven and townships of Casco, Geneva and South Haven with fire and advance life support ambulance service from three stations. The department consists of 22 career staff and 29 paid-on-call members.

"South Haven Area Emergency Services is grateful for the opportunity to have representation at the regional level and looks forward to continuing to bring ideas, partnerships, and best practices back to serve our communities," said Hinz.

Hinz was asked what this honor says about the role SHAES plays in the state association. "I think it reflects SHAES' willingness to stay involved and be part of the larger conversation about the future of fire and EMS," he said in response.

"We serve multiple communities through a fire authority model, and I firmly believe there is value in departments working together and pooling resources to provide strong service in a sustainable way. If our experiences can help shape those discussions, that's something we're proud to contribute."

Free Fun Fest returns to South Haven on June 6

By James Windell

What's there to do in South Haven for families with children that are both free and fun?

That was a question from a mother of four young children last year. The question led to the first Free Fun Fest in the parking lot of the South Haven Yacht Club.

The hastily pulled together Free Fun Fest drew nearly 600 people. Which told Ruth Wiser, one of the organizers of that event, that they were on to something.

This year's Free Fun Fest will take place on Saturday, June 6, 2026, on the grounds of the Michigan Maritime Museum.

"It's very exciting that we have the Michigan Maritime Museum taking it over this year," Wiser says. "This has allowed us to continue to grow and to get more sponsors."

According to Wiser, this year's sponsors for the Free Fun Fest include more than four dozen local businesses and organizations, including the City of South Haven, Visit South Haven, Destination Paw Paw, the South Haven Fire Department, the South Haven Police Department, South Haven Public Schools, the Rotary Club, the Moose Lodge, the Elks, the American Legion, and the Michigan Maritime Museum.

"It's been an amazing number of people who want to become involved this year," Wiser says.

As a result, the event will continue to be free with food for as little as $1.00. The Free Fun Fest is described as a high-energy, waterfront celebration filled with hands-on activities, live demonstrations, and family fun. Everyone who attends can explore emergency vehicles up close, test their skills on a ninja obstacle course, enjoy robotics demonstrations, and participate in hands-on learning stations celebrating Great Lakes history and science.

Inside the Museum, exhibits will be open for exploration, while outside, the waterfront becomes a vibrant hub of activity. There will be limited free boat rides offering a rare chance to get out on the water; dockside tours of the historic tall ship Friends Good Will; more than a dozen carnival-style game booths including Shootin' Hoops, Sailor Knots, Games of Chance, Disc Golf, and more. In addition, there will be a library book giveaway and interactive learning challenges. And complimentary ice cream and root beer for guests.

The 2nd annual Free Fun Fest will take place on Saturday, June 6, from 11:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. at the Michigan Maritime Museum, 260 Dyckman Avenue, South Haven. There will be free shuttle rides from Dyckman Park in downtown South Haven to the Museum.

Wiser says that raffle tickets and food will be cash only.

For more information, visit MichiganMaritimeMuseum.org or follow along on social media for event updates.

T. Deviations. In obtaining a permit, the applicant may apply to the township for a deviation from certain requirements of this section. A deviation may be granted by the zoning board of appeals where the literal application of the section would create a hardship for the sign user and the following criteria are met:

1. The granting of the requested deviation would not be materially detrimental to the property owners in the vicinity.
2. The hardship created by a literal interpretation of the section is due to conditions unique to that lot, building site or parcel and does not apply generally to other properties in the township.
3. The granting of the deviation would not be contrary to the general purposes of this section or set an adverse precedent.

In granting a deviation, the zoning board of appeals may attach additional requirements necessary to carry out the spirit and purpose of this Section in the public interest,

U. Resubmission of application for a deviation request.

1. No application for a deviation from the provisions of this section shall be submitted to the township or be formally considered by the township where such application has been previously denied or turned down by the township unless the township determines that either one year has passed since the prior application was denied or the new application or project is substantially changed from the prior one. In determining whether substantial changes have occurred, the Zoning board of appeals shall consider:
   a. Whether the application has been substantially modified from the earlier one;
   b. Whether external conditions or circumstances have changed significantly so as to warrant a reconsideration of the application;
   c. Whether new and material evidence has been discovered which would justify a reconsideration of the application or project and the failure to present such evidence at the first consideration was not the fault of the applicant.

2025 Water Quality Report for the Village of Paw Paw

Water Supply Serial Number: MI0005210 Completed 5-01-2026 BH/DN EGLE Review 5-13-2026

This report covers the drinking water quality for the Village of Paw Paw for the 2025 calendar year. This information is a snapshot of the quality of the water that we provided to you in 2025. Included are details about where your water comes from, what it contains, and how it compares to United States Environmental Protection Agency (U.S. EPA) and state standards.

Your water comes from three groundwater wells, each over 110, 160, and 178 feet deep. The State performed an assessment of our source water to determine the susceptibility or the relative potential of contamination. The susceptibility rating is on a seven- tiered scale from "very-low" to "very-high" based on geologic sensitivity, well construction, water chemistry and contamination sources. The susceptibility of our source is moderately low for wells #6 & #8, and moderately high for back-up well #4.

There are no significant sources of contamination in our water supply. We are making efforts to protect our sources by participating in the State of Michigan Wellhead Protection Program and following the EGLE annual drinking water monitoring schedule.

If you would like to know more about the report, please contact Tim Brandys, Department of Public Services Director, 110 Harry L. Bush Blvd, Paw Paw, Michigan, 49079, phone number 269-657-3169. Copies are available at the Paw Paw Village Hall. The report is also posted on the Village's Website, www.pawpaw.net (click on the left hand menu item titled Public Services and then click on the item titled "Consumer Confidence Report 2025). This report is not being mailed to all water customers.

Contaminants and their presence in water: Drinking water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that water poses a health risk. More information about contaminants and potential health effects can be obtained by calling the U.S. EPA's Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

Vulnerability of sub-populations: Some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than the general population. Immuno-compromised persons such as persons with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have undergone organ transplants, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune systems disorders, some elderly, and infants can be particularly at risk from infections. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. U.S. EPA/Center for Disease Control guidelines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of infection by Cryptosporidium and other microbial contaminants are available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

Sources of drinking water: The sources of drinking water (both tap water and bottled water) include rivers, lakes, streams, ponds, reservoirs, springs, and wells. Our water comes from wells. As water travels over the surface of the land or through the ground, it dissolves naturally-occurring minerals and, in some cases, radioactive material, and can pick up substances resulting from the presence of animals or from human activity.

Contaminants that may be present in source water include:

- Microbial contaminants, such as viruses and bacteria, which may come from sewage treatment plants, septic systems, agricultural livestock operations and wildlife.
- Inorganic contaminants, such as salts and metals, which can be naturally-occurring or result from urban storm water runoff, industrial or domestic wastewater discharges, oil and gas production, mining or farming.
- Pesticides and herbicides, which may come from a variety of sources such as agriculture and residential uses.
- Radioactive contaminants, contaminants, which can be naturally occurring or be the result of oil and gas production and mining activities.
- Organic chemical contaminants, including synthetic and volatile organic chemicals, which are by-products of industrial processes and petroleum production, and can also come from gas stations, urban storm water runoff, and septic systems.

In order to ensure that tap water is safe to drink, the U.S. EPA prescribes regulations that limit the levels of certain contaminants in water provided by public water systems. Federal Food and Drug Administration regulations establish limits for contaminants in bottled water which provide the same protection for public health.

Water Quality Data

The table below lists all the drinking water contaminants that we detected during the 2025 calendar year. The presence of these contaminants in the water does not necessarily indicate that the water poses a health risk. Unless otherwise noted, the data presented in this table is from testing done January 1, 2025, through December 31, 2025. The State allows us to monitor for certain contaminants less than once per year because the concentrations of these contaminants are not expected to vary significantly from year to year. All the data is representative of the water quality, but some are more than one year old.

Terms and abbreviations used below:

- Maximum Contaminant Level Goal (MCLG): The level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MCLGs allow for a margin of safety.
- Maximum Contaminant Level (MCL): The highest level of a contaminant that is allowed in drinking water. MCLs are set as close to the MCLGs as feasible using the best available treatment technology.
- Maximum Residual Disinfectant Level (MRDL): The highest level of a disinfectant allowed in drinking water. There is convincing evidence that addition of a disinfectant is necessary for control of microbial contaminants.
- Maximum Residual Disinfectant Level Goal (MRDLG): The level of a drinking water disinfectant below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MRDLGs do not reflect the benefits of the use of disinfectants to control microbial contaminants.
- Treatment Technique (TT): A required process intended to reduce the level of a contaminant in drinking water.
- N/A: Not applicable
- ND: not detectable at testing limit
- ppm: parts per million or milligrams per liter
- ppb: parts per billion or micrograms per liter
- ppt: parts per trillion or nanograms per liter
- pCi/l: picocuries per liter (a measure of radioactivity)
- Action Level (AL): The concentration of a contaminant which, if exceeded, triggers treatment or other requirements that a water system must follow.
- Level 1 Assessment: A study of the water supply to identify potential problems and determine (if possible) why total coliform bacteria have been found in our water system.
- Level 2 Assessment: A very detailed study of the water system to identify potential problems and determine (if possible) why an E. coli MCL violation has occurred and/or why total coliform bacteria have been found in our water system on multiple occasions.

Information about lead: Lead can cause serious health effects in people of all ages, especially pregnant people, infants (both formula-fed and breastfed), and young children. Lead in drinking water is primarily from materials and parts used in service lines and in home plumbing. The Village of Paw Paw is responsible for providing high quality drinking water and removing lead pipes but cannot control the variety of materials used in the plumbing in your home. Because lead levels may vary over time, lead exposure is possible even when your tap sampling results do not detect lead at one point in time. You can help protect yourself and your family by identifying and removing lead materials within your home plumbing and taking steps to reduce your family's risk. Using a filter, certified by an American National Standards Institute accredited certifier to reduce lead, is effective in reducing lead exposures. Follow the instructions provided with the filter to ensure the filter is used properly. Use only cold water for drinking, cooking, and making baby formula. Boiling water does not remove lead from water. Before using tap water for drinking, cooking, or making baby formula, flush your pipes for several minutes. You can do this by running your tap, taking a shower, doing laundry or a load of dishes. If you have a lead service line or galvanized requiring replacement service line, you may need to flush your pipes for at least 5 minutes to flush water from both your home plumbing and the lead service line. If you are concerned about lead in your water and wish to have your water tested, contact the Village of Paw Paw Department of Public Services Director, Tim Brandys (269-657-3169) for available resources. Information on lead in drinking water, testing methods, and steps you can take to minimize exposure is available at https://www.epa.gov/safewater/lead.

Our water supply has an unknown number of lead service lines at this time. Two hundred thirty two service lines of are of unknown material out of a total of 1,146 service lines. In 2025, 12 services were investigated and replaced. This makes a total of 531 serviced lines replaced and 298 confirmed to be non-lead, thereby not requiring replacement. The village has replaced approximately 72% of service lines to date. This year and following years the Village has an aggressive program to continue service line investigation and replacement.

Monitoring and Reporting to the Department of Environment, Great Lakes, and Energy (EGLE) Requirements: The State and EPA require us to test our water on a regular basis to ensure its safety. We met all of the monitoring and reporting requirements for 2025.

We will update this report annually and will keep you informed of any problems that may occur throughout the year, as they happen. Copies are available at the Paw Paw Village Hall. The report is also posted on the Village's Website, www.pawpaw.net (click on the left hand menu item titled Public Services and then click on the item titled "Consumer Confidence Report 2025). This report is not being mailed to all water customers.

We invite public participation in decisions that affect drinking water quality. You may contact the Village of Paw Paw Council, which meets the second and fourth Monday of every month at 7:00 p.m. at the Paw Paw District Library, 609 West Michigan, Paw Paw, Michigan. For more information about your water, or the contents of this report, contact Tim Brandys, Department of Public Services Director, 110 Harry L. Bush Blvd, Paw Paw, Michigan, 49079, phone number 269-657-3169. For more information about safe drinking water, visit the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency at http://www.epa.gov/safewater.

Correction on the 2024 Consumer Confidence Report. The 2024 Consumer Confidence Report reported the 90 Th percentile for copper as .01 Parts per million. The correct 90 th percentile for copper for the 2024 Consumer Confidence Report should have been reported as 0.1 parts per million.
